Houston had its best performance in local government operations. The city’s enrollment of municipal buildings in the Better Buildings Challenge, its green building requirements, and its benchmarking of municipal building energy use all contributed to its score in the policy area. The city did not perform as well as in the other categories. Houston can progress in all policy areas to improve its rank in the next edition of the Scorecard.